

Colorado School of Mines Recruiting Eligibility Requirements – Marijuana and Hemp Employers

Colorado School of Mines receives federal funding and Colorado School of Mines Career Center is limited to posting jobs that comply with both federal and state laws. Therefore, organizations involved in the production and/or promotion of marijuana, which is non-compliant with federal law, are not eligible to utilize Colorado School of Mines career services to recruit. Employers involved exclusively in hemp production and/or hemp research may be eligible to utilize career services if they can provide the following:

1. Evidence that they are registered with the State of Colorado Department of Agriculture AND
2. Information regarding the THC levels of the products they are producing, refining, or handling for research purposes.

Counsel will be sought from Colorado School of Mines' legal department as needed to ensure compliance with university policy as well as state and federal law.
